

GILBERT ROSS TALKS ON NEW EDUCATIONAL BILL

"One of the most important educational bills that has thus far been introduced during the present session of the legislature," said Gilbert L. Ross yesterday, "is a measure providing for the establishment of teachers' training schools in conjunction with the high schools of the various counties. Should the bill become a law a 'critic teacher,' whose work will be instruction in the principles of education and methods of teaching, will be provided for a high school in each county that makes application to the state board of education."

"Upon completion of this extra course, which will consist of one year's work, graduates of our high schools will be granted grammar grade certificates without further examination. This plan is at present in vogue in many states and is meeting with remarkable success."

"At present we are unable to provide Nevada teachers for our schools, and thousands of dollars are annually being taken out of the state by teachers who live here only during a school term. While on the other hand the graduates of our high schools are, upon graduation, in a great many cases unable to obtain profitable employment. Moreover, trained Nevada teachers, in sympathy with their surroundings, will raise the standard of our rural schools greatly."

"The only normal school in the state is in connection with the university at Reno. While this school is an excellent one it is unable to supply present demand for teachers."

NO MORE POLITICS FOR HIM.

Hon. A. J. Aylesworth, the learned and upright assemblyman from Goldfield, says no more politics for him; he is through with office-holding. Probably Mr. Aylesworth has heard the story of the ex-con who escaped from prison and in the interim was elected to the Nevada legislature. When arrested as an escape, he told the officers he was willing to return and finish his sentence, but begged the sheriff not to inform any one on his return to the state that he was to do time in, that he ever was a member of the Nevada legislature.

"MILITARY MARY IN MARRYING MARY."

"MARRYING MARY" WILL BE HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

The Rev. Thorley Throckmorton in the musical play of "Marrying Mary," in which Florence Gear and a large company will be seen at the Pavilion theater tomorrow night, represents in a satirical way, a type of clergymen that is none too rare in many cities of wealth. Holding his position at the sufferance of the money bags of his parish, he is apt to wink at their little indiscretions and view with more leniency than is right, for one of his cloth, the eccentricities of those who consider that they bring immunity from censure for the various charities connected with their parish. To find out just how the character would be accepted by the ministers of the gospel, Manager Jules Murry recently invited the pastors of all the various churches in a large city to see the performances, and was more than pleased with their various reports of the play and this character. Said one clergyman, "The satire is well merited." Said another, "It has made me more careful in my own life;" and a third added, "It is just this airing of our pedantries and shortcomings that we ministers need. The more of this wholesome criticism we receive and the more we act upon it, the better we shall administer the duties laid upon us by our sacred office."

LONELY GIRL WANTS A HUSBAND

Asks Walter D. Cole to Find Her a Partner for Life as She Does Not Want to be an Old Maid—Walter is Looking

You can imagine the surprise of Walter D. Cole yesterday, when in opening his mail he found a letter from a poor little girl back in Patterson, New Jersey, who is afraid of becoming an old maid and entreates Walter to find a husband for her. She is wearing her heart away in a shirt factory, where with a number of other girls, she dreams all day long of a nice comfortable home out here on the desert, where she will be the mistress, and each evening when her husband returns from his labors, she will meet him at the gate with a smile and a kiss—and then they awake to the realization of the fact that it is nothing but a dream.

The appeal from the girl touched a sentimental spot in the heart of Mr. Cole, and last evening he answered the letter informing his correspondent that he would endeavor to secure her a life partner and would interest others in her cause. In publishing the letter of the lady we omit her name as we do not desire to cause her any unnecessary embarrassment. The following is the letter:

"Patterson, N. J., Feb. 11, 1909."

opah, Nev.

"Mr. Walter D. Cole, Attorney, Tonopah, Nev.—Dear Sir—A young lady friend, who has a lawyer friend, has given me your name as one whom I could ask concerning the possibility of securing a husband. I am a young lady of only 26 summers, and have no desire to die an old maid. In fact, I am lonely, oh, so lonely, and have heard that there are numerous millionaire miners in your vicinity who desire wives. I ask you from the bottom of my heart to please give me the name of a suitable young man who desires a little wife. Of course I will not tell where I secured the name of the party you refer me to and your confidence will be respected."

"I am nice looking and have been employed in a shirt factory here for two years. I am a blond, weigh 148; small mouth and feet; my form is perfect—simply superb. Before that I was a country girl who was attracted to the city in search of employment and left a loving home."

Since that have never been back, as I hate to return and acknowledge that I have been defeated in my search for a husband. The eastern young men are dead ones. If you know of any young men who desires wives let me know as there are four other girls here who, like myself, are really afraid of filling old maids' graves. But be sure and pick out a real nice boy for me. One who is affectionate in disposition, and, to be truthful, would prefer a lawyer. Won't you please act as a cupid for me and answer this letter as soon as you can. You will, won't you?"

"Yours very sincerely,"

"A. O. G."

After consulting a number of the young men of Tonopah Mr. Cole sent the following reply last night:

"Tonopah, Nev., Feb. 16, 1909."

"Miss ———, Patterson, N. J."

"Dear Miss ———: As to my finding a suitable mate for you, would like to say that I have been on the hunt for the last three years to find a wife for my law partner, Hon. Fred Berry—he is in the state legislature now—and have been unsuccessful in every instance. He is partial to red-headed girls with blue eyes, and if you fill that description I would advise you to wire him. You must also be somewhat fleshy, for he prefers females who weigh in the neighborhood of 160 pounds. When you write him do so in an affectionate tone, and tell him that you would be willing to go to the end of Japan for him. Make the letter mushy. There are a few young men here who are somewhat matrimonially inclined, and if you will send me the names of your colleagues in that shirt factory, I will introduce them. The best way to do is to come out to Tonopah in person and then commence active operations on the heart of some worthy young man."

"Cupid Daniels in the county clerk's office here can give you more information on the subject of young unmarried men than I can, and I would advise you or your girl friends to write to him. I am married."

"Very respectfully,"

"WALTER D. COLE."

JUDGE ATKINSON HAS BUSY DAY IN JUSTICE COURT

ONE CIVIL SUIT FINISHED; ALSO A CRIMINAL CASE DISPOSED OF.

The case of P. M. Bowler, Jr., vs. Martin A. Williams and Cecil Moore Williams, his wife, was called yesterday in the justice court before a jury. Bowler asked for judgment for the sum of $100, which he claimed was due him on a promissory note. The defense made the claim that the note had been paid.

After occupying the attention of the court for the entire day the case was given to the jury last evening, and in a short time that body returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the sum stated.

M. South appeared in the court last evening on the charge of assault and battery and was fined $50 and costs by Judge Atkinson. Immediately after being dismissed on this charge he was rearrested on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon, and for this was fined another $50 and costs. South paid both fines and costs amounting to $146.

BUTLER THEATER ATTRACTS MANY

Large crowds attended the Butler theater last evening at both performances to witness the moving pictures. The reels are considered to be the best that have ever been shown in Tonopah, and were appreciated by the audience. Will C. Murphy sang two illustrated song ballads and was encored several times. The little Main street playhouse continues to be a favorite among the theater-goers of this city, as is shown by the attendance at the performances. It is an excellent place to pass away an hour or two and one can witness pictures from all parts of the world.
